

- A diagram showing two groups of four squares each, separated by a diagonal slash. The first group on the left has three squares in a row, with a fourth square positioned below the second square. The second group on the right consists of four squares arranged in a single horizontal row.

